

About Jeff Hasenfratz

Jeff, an executive team coach, coaching supervisor, dialogue facilitator, and Chinese speaker, has lived in Asia for almost 30 years. His interest in helping organisations develop the potential of senior leaders has led him to focus his career in this area, with a particular emphasis on effective collaboration.

Jeff's 30 years of experience in the technology and human capital consulting industries includes functional specialization in business development and in talent assessment, development, and transition. Previous corporate associations include Hewlett Packard, Cincinnati Bell Information Systems, and Russell Reynolds Associates, with assignments in Tokyo and Hong Kong.

Jeff is Managing Director of Mindsight Executive Development Services, a Shanghai-based consulting firm focused on helping clients improve their Team Effectiveness through better collaboration.

Clients benefit not only from Jeff's ability to help C-Suite teams gain and leverage greater self and team awareness, leading to increased effectiveness. They also enjoy his practical focus, energy, and humorous personal style.

Jeff has supported senior leadership teams of Chinese and European firms, through workshops and 1:1 coaching conducted over 9-12 months, to improve trust, alignment, and collaboration.

He has also served as an Adjunct Coach with the Center for Creative Leadership. He holds the degree of Juris Doctor (Law) and has taught collaboration skills in his client workshops and at the Hult International Business School, Shanghai. Jeff is also certified to interpret a variety of quality assessment tools.

Jeff founded the Shanghai Coaches' Learning Group in 2008, and is also a founding member of what is now called the Hong Kong International Coaching Community. In his spare time, Jeff volunteers with a mental health hotline and also enjoys practicing Chen-style taichi.
